Re Item V

Reasoned statement with regard to novelty, inventive step or industrial applicability; citations and explanations supporting such statement

Reference is made to the following documents:

- D1: WO 97/08386 A (KAYSERSBERG; GRAFF, PIERRE) 6 March 1997 (1997-03-06) cited in the application
- D2: US-A-2 502 111 (WALKER CHARLES R) 28 March 1950 (1950-03-28)
- D3: US-A-5 686 168 (LAURENT ET AL) 11 November 1997 (1997-11-11)
- D4: EP-A-0 408 248 (JAMES RIVER CORPORATION OF VIRGINIA) 16 January 1991 (1991-01-16) cited in the application
- D5: US-A-5 736 223 (LAURENT ET AL) 7 April 1998 (1998-04-07) cited in the application
- D6: EP-A-0 426 548 (KAYSERSBERG SA) 8 May 1991 (1991-05-08)
- D7: GB-A-1 245 280 (KIMBERLY-CLARK CORPORATION) 8 September 1971 (1971-09-08)

The document D1 is regarded as being the closest prior art to the subject-matter of claims 1,24 and 54 and shows (see in particular figures 2 and 3 with corresponding parts in the description) a multi-ply web material, comprising three plies joined to one another by gluing.

The subject-matter of claims 1,24 and 54 differs in particular in that said first and second decorative elements are distributed randomly with respect to each other/said first and second embossing units and said first and second path for said first and second ply are arranged such that said first and said second decorative elements are distributed randomly with respect to each other on said first and second ply. This concept is also not known from any of the other documents cited in the international search report. Therefore claims 1,24 and 54 are novel (Article 33(2) PCT).

The problem to be solved by the present invention may be regarded as an alternative way of producing glued embossed multi-ply web material allowing particular and ameliorative aesthetic and technical-functional effects to be obtained with respect to conventional products and where further the decorative elements produced by the projections on a first ply are less prone to be damaged in the second lamination to which the ply is subjected in a following lamination.

The solution to this problem proposed in claims 1, 24 and 54 of the present application is considered as involving an inventive step (Article 33(3) PCT) for the following reasons: There is no hint seen in the documents cited in the international search report towards an arrangement such that said first and second decorative elements are distributed randomly with respect to each other or where said first and second embossing units and said first and second path for said first and second ply are arranged such that said first and said second decorative elements are distributed randomly with respect to each other on said first and second ply.

The arrangements of the prior art are related to tip- to- tip embossment, embossment of the outer plies in the same embossing unit and/or showing the same pattern in corresponding locations of both the outer plies.

Claims 2-23,25-53, 55-62 are dependent on claims 1,24 and 54 respectively and as such also meets the requirements of the PCT with respect to novelty and inventive step.

The industrial applicability would appear evident (Article 33(4) PCT).
